

Abstract of the Disclosure:

A method and a configuration for driving one-time operable isolation elements on a semiconductor chip store an item of isolation information for each isolation element to be 5 operated on the chip. In which case, as soon as the isolation information item is present for an isolation element, a one-time operation on the isolation element is begun.

REL/nt